

The various financial arrangements applicable to resident-researchers according to their profile

Researcher's administrative status at the time of residency	Researcher's financial situation at the time of residency	Institute for Advanced Studies (I.A.S.) cover available	Additional information
Researcher attached to an institution	Researcher receiving full salary support from his or her home institution, in excess of 2,500 euros*.	The Institute may pay a lump sum, subject to a ceiling, to the researcher's home institution. The researcher does not receive any	Signature of a delegation agreement between the Institute and the parent institution
	>	>	For example: a monthly salary of 1,500 euros paid by the home institution, plus a 1,000 euro allowance paid by the Institute. e allocation de 1000 euros versée par l'Institut
	Researcher receiving full salary support from his or her home institution of less than 2,500 euros*.	Payment to the researcher by the Institute of an allowance covering the difference between the amount of the salary maintained and the sum of 2,500 euros*.	No supplements
	Researcher subject to a partial reduction in salary by his or her institution, but whose salary remains above 2,500 euros*.	Payment to the researcher by the Institute of an allowance covering the difference between the amount of the salary maintained and the sum of 2,500 euros*.		For example: a monthly salary of 1,500 euros paid by the home institution, plus a 1,000 euro allowance paid by the Institute.
Independent researcher, not attached to an institution	>	Payment of an allowance in the form of a net salary of 2,500 euros* under a fixed-term employment contract.	The researcher is on the Institute's payroll for the duration of the residency.

(*In this model, the allowance ceiling of 2,500 euros is given as an indication. It may vary downwards depending on the candidate's personal situation, in particular age, seniority in post, and the date on which the Phd was obtained).